Enrique Butti

El Novio es inspector del Catastro y penetra en la intimidad de las casas en horas en que muchas mujeres solas suelen escuchar a Denis o a Aznavour soñando que todavía no han vivido el gran amor. En tiempos en que bastarían fotografías aéreas para descubrir construcciones abusivas, los inspectores tienen en verdad una misión secreta: denunciar a los apestados de enclaustramiento por cuya culpa el país se encuentra aislado en una rigurosa cuarentena. Pero El Novio descuida ese espionaje para dar rienda suelta a un instinto irrefrenable: conseguir el mayor número de novias posible, sin criterio ni prejuicios respecto de edades, medidas anatómicas, condiciones sociales o civiles, gracejo o apostura. Meticulosas anotaciones en una libreta le sirven para no confundir a las innumerables novias ni las citas con cada una de ellas, y para persistir en las mentiras que se ve obligado a inventar para seducirlas en los pocos minutos de su inspección. ¿Para qué las quiere El Novio, ya que no busca sexo, sexo explícito por lo menos? ¿Adónde puede conducirlo su desenfreno? Sobre esta base Enrique Butti ha escrito una atrapante y única novela de amor, humor y desasosiego.
