Elizabeth Haran

Australien, 1933: Arabella Im Tal der flammenden Sonne Fitzherbert, eine junge Engländerin, unternimmt mit ihren Eltern eine Reise durch Australien. Die Familie ist des trockenen Klimas wegen zum Roten Kontinent gereist, damit ihre einzige Tochter sich dort von ihrer langen Krankheit erholen kann. Doch durch eine Verkettung unglücklicher Umstände bleibt Arabella allein und verletzt in der Wüste zurück. Sie wäre sicherlich dem Tod geweiht, hätte nicht eine Gruppe umherziehender Aborigines sie gefunden und zur nächsten Siedlung gebracht: Marree – eine winzige Stadt im Outback. Arabella ist auf sich allein gestellt, während ihre Eltern sie tot wähnen ...

We Germans do love Australian novels and i am no longer an exception as Im Tal der flammenden Sonne i've got learn Im Tal der flammenden Sonne and loved a lot of Elizabeth Haran's books. due to an internet library i ultimately received my palms on one in every of them in English. "Under a flaming sky" is now my moment favorite (after "Im Land Im Tal der flammenden Sonne des Eukalyptusbaums", idek the orginal title) of her novels. At the start of the tale Arabella is an annoying, spoilt brat, but if she is stranded in a small outback city with no her parents, she has to begin growing to be up. It was once a true excitement to examine Arabella's personality developement and the influence the Australian outback has on her. the tale is enjoyable and wealthy in kind (romance, action, just a little of drama, ...).
